

7-05-2012 Today we left the condo around 8:30 am and arrived in Stresa, Italy around 11:45 am. It was an awesome view as we drove through the second highest mountain in Europe, Macugnaga, and arrive at this beautiful lakeside town.

We quickly found a tour boat that took us around one island to view and then to Isola Superiore, or Fisherman's Island where we had lunch.

The island village is how you would expect an Italian village to look right out of a story book. The women shopped and the boys played around the water. Skipping rocks was a big thing for them.

The boat picked us up at 2pm and we headed for Bella Island home of the Borromean Palace and Gardens.

Hey Vicky, Joyce says the below picture is for you ... giant Hydranges flowers!

It was another story book place to visit. The pictures really don't do it justice.

The boat picked us up a little before 4pm with a new crew ... I believe they are all captains.

Back to Belgium this Saturday!
